

Constitution Revision Urged By Governor

"You can best serve Kentucky by serving the cause of education," Gov. Bert T. Combs told an audience composed of Kentucky teachers and UK students assembled for a convocation Monday morning.

Speaking before a standing-room-only crowd in Memorial Hall, Gov. Combs called for a modernization of the Kentucky constitution.

He stressed the importance of education in connection with his support of the need to call a convention to revise the constitution.

"Unless a convention is approved by voters in the November election," he said, "a Court of Appeals mandate will say that no one except those holding state-wide offices shall draw more than $7,200 a year."

Gov. Combs said if that was allowed to happen, Kentucky would be set back at least a quarter of a century.

The ruling was made by the Court of Appeals last winter but it is withholding a mandate on the issue pending the convention possibility.

Quoting Lincoln, Jefferson and Cassius Clay to support his belief in the need for the convention, Gov. Combs emphasized the need for the change to keep up with changing times.

"Quiet dogmas of the past are not sufficient for our troubled times," the governor quoted Lincoln. He quoted Jefferson as having said, "Laws and institutions must go hand in hand with the progress of the human mind."

Spicing his speech with jokes and anecdotes from his native Kentucky mountains, the governor was interrupted several times by laughter and loud applause from the audience.

The audience laughed again when the governor pointed out from each district in Kentucky some outmoded provisions of the would be elected to the convention, 70-year-old constitution. As an example, the constitution requires be submitted to the people for approval. that one doorkeeper must be at the Capitol at all times.

"The Capitol now has four doors," he said.

Ladies in Kentucky violate the constitution every time they vote, the governor said, as the state charter does not include women suffrage. Only the United States constitution makes their voting legal, he added.

The constitution further specifies that public officials must swear they have never engaged in a duel, Gov. Combs said.

"We will revise, not rewrite the constitution," he said. A delegate when the governor pointed out from each district in Kentucky some outmoded provisions of the would be elected to the convention, 70-year-old constitution. As an example, the constitution requires be submitted to the people for approval. that one doorkeeper must be at the Capitol at all times.

Gov. Combs, who was introduced by Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, University vice president, constantly stressed the favorable effect that a constitutional revision would have on education.

In a question and answer period after his address, the governor was asked why "we can't continue to violate the constitution as we have been doing instead of calling for constitutional revisions."

"Because no self respecting court will go along with it," he answered.

Mike Wenninger of the WBKY news staff discusses the proposed Kentucky constitutional revision with Gov. Bert T. Combs. The governor spoke at a convocation in Memorial Hall Monday.

Combs To Speak At King Library

Gov. Bert T. Combs will speak at a formal showing of the Margaret I. King Library's exhibit on "Presidents and Near-Presidents" at 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 5.

Compiled by S. B. Gribble, assistant to the director of UK libraries, the exhibit consists of autographs of all United States Presidents and of unsuccessful candidates for the presidency.

The manuscripts were selected for the collection owned by Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Sang, River Forest, Ill.

A catalog of the exhibit containing photographic copies of handwriting of several presidents and a list of all letters and materials in the collection is available in Room 208 of the King Library.

Guignol Reviving 'Fledermaus'

In keeping with Guignol Theatre's "Year of Revivals," the Guignol and Opera Workshop presents this week the Johann Strauss 19th century musical practical joke, "Die Fledermaus."

The comic opera was first presented at UK in 1952 after being performed in English by the Metropolitan Opera in 1950.

Wallace N. Briggs, director of Guignol Theatre, is production director of the Strauss opera. Hunter B. Howerton is assistant director and Phillips V. Brooks, house director.

Co-directors of the Opera Workshop are Aimo Kiviniemi, Ann Huddleston, and Phyllis Jeness.

The opera's 40-voice chorus is coached by Miss Jeness, musical director for the production. Accompaniment for "Fledermaus" is being furnished by Ann Huddleston and Mary Carver Lutz.

Set design and technical direction is handled by Arch Rainey, assisted by Phillip Cox and the stagecraft class. Cox is stage manager and his staff is composed of Jo Hern, Betty Maxson, John Arena, John Martin, and Wayne Dixon.

Members of the cast are John Hills, Dr. Falke, a noted ballad master; Russell Wharton, Alfred, a wild oat; Phyllis Hurt, Adele, the Eisenstein maid; Janice Cook, Rosalinda, Eisenstein's wife. Aimo Kiviniemi, Gabriel Eisenstein; Palmer Riddle, Dr. Blind, Eisenstein's lawyer, Wayland Rogers, Frank, a warden; Lynne Smith, Prince Orlofsky; Charles Coughlin, Frosch, a jailer; Carroll Hale, a bum.

Alice Broadbent, Ida; Jack Ritter and Norman English, attendants to Prince Orlofsky; Betty Gragg, Mary Jo Hyden, muscians; Michele Shuck, a dancer; Rosemary Boyer, Betty St. Clair, Miss Jeness, demure.

10 UK Students Study In Mexico

Ten UK students, under the direction of Dr. J. R. Schwenderman, head of the geography department, are attending a six-week summer school session at the Institute of Technology in Monterey, Mexico.

Sponsored by the International Summer School Unit, the students are studying Spanish and Latin American geography.

Under the exchange program, one professor, Jose Bruner, and six students from the Mexican university are at UK this summer.

Ten United States colleges organized the program and arranged for an exchange with the Monterey university. Each school sends one professor and ten students to Monterey and one professor and ten students are sent to each of the U.S. colleges.

UK President Frank G. Dickey is chairman of the program in which colleges and universities from six southern states and the District of Columbia are participating.

Dr. Dickey is in Mexico now evaluating the program and making plans for future exchange. He will return August 10, according to his secretary.

Undergraduate and graduate students studying in Mexico can earn six semester hours credit during the summer. In addition, officials of the program recommend that the students audit a course taught in the Spanish language in some field of interest to them.

The students from the Monterey Institute of Technology are studying English at UK.

Of the Mexican students studying here, five are economics majors. The sixth, Ruben Rubiano, is majoring in civil engineering at his home university.

The economics majors are Bernardo Martinez, Carlos Russek, Humberto Marquez, Manuel De LaFuente, and Gonzalo Zalazar.

UK students studying in Mexico are Robert Odear Jr., John Anderson, Mrs. Jane Odear, Beth Ann Schwendeman, John B. Odear, June Toomey, Gladys Peyton, Laverne Holcomb, and Kay Murphy.

Lynne Smith, playing the part of Prince Orlofsky in Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus," confers with Aimo Kiviniemi, who plays Gabriel Eisenstein, a well-to-do. At the left Phyllis Hurt, as Adele, listens. The Guignol opera closes tomorrow night.

1960 Kentuckians

1960 Kentuckians will be distributed to August graduating seniors next week.

The yearbooks will be available only to candidates for bachelors' degrees who have paid their senior fees, according to Perry Ashley, business manager.

Students may pick up their yearbooks in Room 115 of the Journalism Building from 9 to 11 a.m., Tuesday through Friday. Senior fee slips must be presented.

A small number of extra books will be on sale for $6 each.

Cancer Research Award Granted UK Professor

A $71,901 cancer research award from the United States Public Health Service to Dr. E. Douglas Rees of the University of Kentucky Medical Center was announced Monday by Dr. William R. Willard, Vice President for the Medical Center.

With the help of the three-year grant, Dr. Rees, an assistant professor of medicine, will be investigating the development of breast tumors and chemical changes in such tumors induced in albino rats.

Dr. Rees will seek to explain the chemical mechanism which produces the breast cancer in the white rat and to determine the chemical changes which follow the cancer to survive and grow.

The grant will be administered by the Kentucky Research Foundation.

Graduated from Harvard University, Dr. Rees received his medical education at the Yale University School of Medicine.

Retired UK Employee Has Fatal Heart Attack

Miss Minnie Pherigo, 82, former employee of the University Business Office, died Tuesday at her Lexington home after suffering a heart attack.

She was employed by the University from 1917 until her retirement in 1948. Her last position was as secretary to the vice president for business administration.

Funeral services were held yesterday morning.
